

HAS TWO WIVES; DENIES BIGAMY; LIVED WITH ONE

Washington Man Says
He Did No Wrong in Marrying Twice.

While admitting that he had been married twice, Owen S. Edmonston, who was arrested this morning by Detectives Hartigan and Evans, on the complaint of Marshal Farnam, chief of police of Baltimore, contends that he is no bigamist, because he is not living with both of his wives at the same time.

However, the police are not willing to see the matter from his standpoint, and detectives will come from Baltimore today to take the man to that city. He consents to leave Washington without the necessary formalities of extradition, so firm is he in the belief that he has done no wrong.

Committed No Crime.

Edmonston was married the second time September 4, to Miss Mary Bradley, of New York city. He steadfastly asserts his belief that he has done nothing wrong, and said this morning:

"I have done nothing wrong and committed no crime. I am married to both women, but I had not been living with my first wife for several years when I married my second."

"Sixteen years ago I was married to Miss Ellen Chesley Gorrell in the rectory of the Church of the Covenant, in this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Smith, assistant pastor of the church. Miss Gorrell's father was a prosperous farmer, of Cattletown station, in Fauquier county, Va., and my father was a miller of the same place."

"There was objection to the marriage on the part of her parents, and for that reason it was necessary to keep our plans secret until after the wedding."

Sued for Divorce.

"My wife and I were separated several years ago and she instituted divorce proceedings, but the case was never disposed of. After being separated I met Miss Mary Bradley, of New York city, and fell in love with her. She was visiting in Baltimore, and on September 4 we were married in that city. I felt that I had been separated long enough to justify me in marrying Miss Bradley. I am still very much in love with her and cannot see that I have done anything wrong."

RYAN FOUND GUILTY OF TWO ASSAULTS

Struck Edward Grayson
and Then Assaulted Samuel Fontz.

After remaining out five minutes, the jury in the case of David Ryan, charged with assaulting Edward Grayson, superintendent of the Seventh street division of the Capital Traction Company, and Samuel Fontz, a conductor in the same company, returned with a verdict of guilty in both cases.

Ryan is said to have attacked Grayson August 4, near the car barns of the Seventh street line. According to the Government witness, Grayson had criticized a small boy for kicking tin cans in the vicinity of the barn. William Ragan accused him and told him that he was getting after the wrong boy. Shortly afterward Ragan struck him and ran. Grayson pursued him and as he did so he was attacked by the defendant, Ryan.

Fontz, who attempted to stop the assault, was also attacked.

WESTINGHOUSE GIVES MOTORS TO SCHOOL

George Westinghouse, the Pittsburgh millionaire, inventor, and manufacturer of railway and electrical equipment, has presented the reorganized College of Engineering, of George Washington University, with a dozen dynamos and motors, of the latest pattern, to be used in the instruction of the classes in electrical engineering.

For years Mr. Westinghouse has shown a deep personal interest in the educational institutions of this city, particularly the university he has just favored. This branch of the university opens next Wednesday. Prof. Howard L. Hodgkins, dean of the college of engineering, says Mr. Westinghouse's gift has been installed and places the college in the front rank with regard to equipment.

Worth $6.00 to $10.00, Choice, $3.75

At the beginning let us say that every skirt is a late fall model. There are 250 skirts in the lot, and hardly any two alike! They represent samples from several of the largest and best known skirt makers in the United States—concerns who are noted for turning out skirts that fit well—are nicely tailored—and look well!

Materials are fine chiffon panamas, mohairs, serges and chevots.
Most all are black, though a few are in blue or brown.

The style is a full skirted model, some with the fold trimming around the bottom, others with a hang that proclaims each skirt to be man-tailored!

All lengths and waist bands in one style or another. They are without doubt the biggest skirt values ever offered in Washington at so small a price, and if you're wise be here bright and early Saturday morning to secure the ten dollar skirts for $3.75.
